

Laurent Desvillettes

Some new results on triangular cross diffusion

Triangular systems of reaction - cross diffusion naturally appear in many situations in biology (population dynamics, chemotaxis, etc.). They consist of systems of two equations in which only one of them includes a cross diffusion term. We show how weak solutions can be obtained for typical examples of such systems, and how low dimensionality sometimes enables to get unique strong solutions.